

Hunter, Gorilla, Woman

Materials = none

This game is like rock, paper, scissors. We play it with individuals, if you browse around there is a group/team version of this game. Have everyone grab a partner and stand back to back. Count to three and have them turn around and do an action. You can create your own actions for the three characters or have the youth create them before you start. It is in an elimination game so the loser of the two is out. The winners take on other winners until you are down to one.

As an icebreaker, be sure to come up with some clever things to have them get to know their partners a bit in between in each round. Use random "get to know you" questions or have them share stories.

Who Wins?

Gorilla beats the Woman - Woman beats the Man - Hunter beats the Gorilla
